Cleveland Overtopped by Harrison-Why the Latter Is Preferable.

No conscientious and intelligent Republic can, whatever his opinions as to acminis astive policies or his preference as to cancicates, should hesitate for a moment in giving an emphatic, all sufficient reason why as wisupport Harrison and oppose Cleve and. As one candidate only can be nominated where a number are named, and one platform only can be adopted where a dozen may be suzgester, personal dissatisfaction or disapporament is inevitable. But with every true Bepublican it must yield to the will of the mafority and end in a generous and faithful support of the ticket, provided on y the cancidates represent the carcinal principles of Republicanism. Such is emphatically the case at present Gen. Harrison is a pronounced, lifelong Nationalist, loyal and faithfu under all circumstances to the great Rapublican doctrines for which he risker his life on the batt efelo. Grover Cleveland is the opponent of these principles a bolitical associate of ox-Rebels and Secessionists, an admirer of Calhounism, and a rewarder of state sovercignty advocates, whose hands were raised against the national flag No Republican workly of the name can hesetate in choosing between these Questions of policy are subordinate to the care mal doctrine of depublicanism. Taat the government is supreme in its jurisdiction and represents an indestructi de union or indissoluble states, and as a sovereign power owes protection to and calms allegiance from all its citizens at I ome and abroad, is the vital, fundamental decirine of the Republican party. It took this doctrine from Washington, Tanulton and Adams, who first announced it, from Webster, who expounced a n. caampioned it was a matchless ability, and oven from Jackson, who was a Nationalist at heart and who was crawn by accident and party suction into an organization with which he did not sympathize and to which he did not properly belong.

Gen Harriskn is a Republican by instinct, reason and unberstance. His graudfather, the minin prosident, was a Nationalist who attested the strength of his convictions by making Janiel Webster, I is great defencer of the Union and the Constitution, as cine! cabinetalviser. All the larrisons since then pave believed in Webster's coctrite of nutional supremisey and that the citizen's highest allegiance is to the nation.

When the doctrine was assailed by organized relation under Jeff Davis, L & C. La- ! mar et al., the present Hardison left his family unprovided for in case of his death, and went to the front, putting his life in peri. throughout the war in aiding to suppress the attempt to dismamber the Union and set up state Soveret, atv. Grover Cievelat I, a habyoung man without a family on his hands, refused to this his himos for the limon at the time of its greatest peril, and even when dratted to hired a trace, a alien substitute and still defined to dear the blue. That he remained at home through cowardine cannot be believed, for become yn to be brave personally. Without family response threes, rebust and in the vices of his yeath, he might have responded to bassours will, and his corrage and street to a will would have enabled min do record has country splencial service and gain to thuself honor, whetherhe surviced or not. Cleveland had the youth, describes touclessness and will power to tave snote a fine military commander, and might have won for aimself the rank of a major general, as well as the greater honor of having done something to preserve the Julya and destroy the curse of human slavery. That he tailed to embrace, the orportunity open to him can be explained on y by the fact that he did not believe as Larrison did, in national sovereignty, but held tirmly to Callamnism, and thought the legal right was with Jod' Davis and the rebellious states. Helelieved they were within their J. A. Stove'l to No. in DeCoursey constitutional rights when they secreted; that it was a violation of the Constitution for the Lincoln g wereteent to usy force to preserve the Union and the Constitution, and that it was unconstitutional to save the Constitution. So believing by remained at home, and in 1864 gave his support to the party which de- Colors to City Now Co. to Bert in clared the war for the Union a faiture and believed that the Union so diers were engages, in unconstitutional work. So holding he voted against manhood suffrage opposed the adoption of the war amendments to the Constitution, and at every point antagonized the doctrines for which Carrison foughtand struggled. Instead of upholding national supremacy, Mr. Cleveland gave his support to he state sovereignty doctrine and held the federal government to be the creation of a eague or compact between sovereign states. He did not even allow the federal government tad dignity of resting on a contract, for in his view any of the parties could withdraw at pleasure without responsibility for njury or damage to the Union. According to Cleveland, Callesian and Jeff Davis the federa. government existed only by virtie of a power of attorney from the states, and this power could be revoked and canceled at any tune-each state to be the judge for itself of the sufficiency of the cause and of the time for secession

Having at a most critical time refused to give an support to the Coctrine of nationaity and alleg ance to the nation, Cleveland bestowed his sympathies instead upon Ca,hounism. Mr. Cleveland today holds the chief magistracy by vartue of millifluation of the laws and Constitution of the United States in several southern states. Preo suffrage was stamped out, national citizenship denies, and the war amendments nullilled in order to make him president. Le can be re-elected only by a resort to the same means on the part of his ex-Rebe, and Secessionist su porters. Lis election would score another triumph for the anti-nationa, state supremucy cogma, just as Marrison's would attest another victory for nationality and a legiunce to the nation. In this situation any Republican who can be led away from the support of Gen. Harrison because of dissatisfaction regarding the amount of cuty on certain imports and the extent of the free list and the tax on woo, is unworthy the party name he has claimed, and has yet to fearn the fundamenta principles of Republicanism.-Chr. cago Tribune.

Inquiry of the passengers on many ocean voyages has shown that not a ship crosses the sea upon which there is not some cassenger who has a cream that the side would be cestroyed, which strongly tempted him to remain at homet or was warned by a friend, who, after such a dream, prophesied disaster! or which had not left, behind some intending passenger distorted by a dream.—Rev.
